Charles & Ray Eames, 1945

vitra.

Charles and Ray Eames developed a toy elephant made of plywood in 1945. Manufactured in recycled post-industrial plastic, the Eames Elephant RE can now be enjoyed by the target group for which it was originally intended: children – whether as an indoor-outdoor toy or simply as an attractive object for a child's bedroom.

The Eames Elephant also comes in plywood as well as in the scaled-down version Eames Elephant (small) RE made of recycled plastic.

- Material: dyed-through recycled polypropylene from industrial waste, 100% recyclable, matt finish.

 Outdoor use: suitable for utilisation outdoors on a temporary or seasonal basis, following care instructions. After prolonged exposure to the elements, clean and store away in a dry, sheltered place to ensure lasting use and avoid any deterioration in appearance.

Charles & Ray Eames, 1945

Charles and Ray Eames developed a toy elephant made of plywood in 1945; however, this piece never went into production. One prototype was shown at the Museum of Modern Art in New York in 1946 and still survives in the Eames family archives today. After issuing a first limited edition in 2007, Vitra commenced serial production of the Eames Elephant in plywood in 2018. It is available as a dark version in European walnut and a light version in chestnut.

The charming pachyderm additionally exists as the Eames Elephant RE made of recycled post-industrial plastic, which is ideal for children, and as a smaller version in the same material, Eames Elephant (small) RE – both in a choice of assorted colours.

Materials

- Eames Elephant (plywood)
- Material: moulded plywood with face veneer in chestnut or walnut, lacquer finish.
- Origin of wood: chestnut (Castanea sativa) from Slovenia; walnut (Juglans nigra) from Austria.
